

Abstract

In the paper we apply the operational calculus method for the solution of the inverse problem while determining the coefficients by the data of field measuring of oil production rate and water, since in many cases these oilfield data very vary that doesn't allow to apply the stratification method used in the theory.