

Abstract

In the paper the Cauchy problem is considered for initial-boundary value problem for parabolic equation. Here we investigate the problem, when the solution of initial-boundary value problem for partial parabolic equation can be approximated by the linear combinations of elementary solutions. In the present paper the considered boundary conditions contains the time differentiation.